Blaine Motsinger Bio

As a non-traditional student at NIACC, Blaine's initial career path was in the field of server administration. After graduation, Blaine spent the next 2 ½ years working in the industry for a couple of major corporations.

During these 2 ½ years, Blaine started drifting further and further away from his initial interest in server administration, and during free time, began pursuing his new goal of designing and building websites. But with no professional experience, it was nearly impossible to find an opportunity to be employed as a designer. After spending months searching and waiting, an incredible opportunity arose which ushered in a transition between the two, helping to bridge the gap that seemed miles apart.

It was during his 9 months with this employer that Blaine began to realize his potential for casting vision and the ability to think through ideas to their possible outcomes. As his newly discovered potential and design skills steadily gained strength, circumstances arose which brought to mind the dream of entrepreneurship; a notion he rarely thought as attainable. Through council with trusted mentors, friends, and family, Blaine felt the time was right to leave the umbrella of the corporate environment and pursue the adventures of entrepreneurship.

It was also during this transition that Blaine sought to fulfill another longtime dream of his, studying art at the University level. Blaine is currently attending UNI, majoring in Art Studio: with an emphasis in Graphic Design.

With the combination of leadership skills, honesty and integrity, strong technical background, and love for art and design, founding Render Orange LLC has been the perfect fit. For the first time, Blaine can easily say he loves his job. Outside of work and school, Blaine enjoys the outdoors, spending time with family, listening to classical music, playing his guitar, reading and writing, and creating acrylic abstract paintings.
