

Stephen Rausch

Stephen Rausch has worked for Rausch Brothers Trucking since graduation from high school. Primarily a truck driver his first year, he was promoted to road foreman for the following two years. He took a year off to work at an internship with Enterprise Rent-a-Car last year, and is now currently working on reconstructing the internal workings of Rauch Brothers. His plans include building a more efficient billing and computer system for Rausch Brothers, as well as positioning the company to deal with freight. He is currently a junior majoring in Supply Chain Management and enjoys being active in student organizations. He is President of the Supply Chain Management Organization and Vice President of Events for Northern Iowa Management Association.

Rausch Brothers Trucking

Rausch Brothers Trucking was established nearly 30 years ago with management now including the third generation of family operators. The business was originally started by Vincent Rausch in 1979, and passed to his three sons, Richard, Tim, and Jim Rausch. These three brothers quickly developed the business into their dream. When they became involved, it was merely three trucks. Today, Rausch Brothers currently owns 27 of their own trucks, while contracting up to 300 additional trucks. They are currently one of the largest sub-contractors in Iowa focusing on the construction field, along with agricultural lime. This year has been one of the most successful for them, and the future looks even brighter.
